11 OCT 1875 DATE ARRIVED FROM UK

A page from Lloyds Register of Shipping among Daphne & Joy Hastwell's papers mentions a ship Trevelyan arriving Pt Adelaide 11 Oct 1875. Enquiry to SA Maritime Museum indicates that a Mary Ann Johnson aged 16 years was indeed on the clipper ship Trevelyan which dropped anchor off the jetty at The Semaphore. Cabin passengers usually went by launch to the jetty, rest of the passengers went on to Pt Adelaide. The Trevelyan sailed from London on 1 July 1875, calling at Plymouth to pick up passengers, so it was just over a 3 month voyage. The Trevelyan was an iron-hulled clipper, 245 ft long, 33 ft beam, 2 decks, according to the Otago Witness of 4 Apr 1874 (Page 5).

THE IMMIGRANT SHIP TREVELYAN.

In these days of fine ships it is hard to say when the superlative of accommodation at sea is reached, but although not one of the modern school the Trevelyan is certainly a well-selected vessel for the transport of immigrants. She has a good height between decks, has excellent ventilation, is clean, and is well regulated, probably in consequence of the capital understanding which appears to exist between the surgeon-superintendent and the master, aided by the good offices of Mrs. Whiting, the matron. She of course had the principal charge of the single girls, and well acquitted herself, and if they prove to be what their appearance would lead people to expect the colony will be greatly benefited by the arrival. In the poop the hospitals, baths, and lavatories find place; thus the cabin proper is much contracted, and below in the after end of the 'tween decks is the compartment for girls, 84 of whom find there comfortable quarters. The fittings of this department are much the same as those ordinarily in use, but in the next space devoted to the families a complete reformation is notable. Instead of the old plan of berths at the sides the whole area is divided, into small staterooms, so as to ensure an amount of privacy not otherwise obtainable. The whole are well ventilated, and as clean as it is possible to make them. The single men's compartment is fitted with bunks, though some of the occupants had wisely provided hammocks as preferable. On deck is found the cooking gear and water distiller; but although the latter has been in good working order the passengers have been supplied from the ship's tanks as most conducive to good health. The Surgeon-Superintendent is Dr. Hardy, a gentleman of colonial birth, who has returned to Adelaide to practise his profession. His report regarding the people on board is highly favourable; therefore it may be concluded that as a whole they are an acquisition. There are 166 English, 22 Scotch, 90 Irish, 22 foreigners, and the industrial lists show a preponderance of artisans and labourers. The passage has proved agreeable. The following jottings are from a passenger's diary:-

'On July 8 sailed from Plymouth, having in addition to 300 souls two stowaways and a crew of 36 hands. The voyage passed very pleasantly until the tropics, when there was some sickness set in amongst the juveniles, and two infants died; but beyond this there was nothing of an alarming character.'

On Sunday, the 10th, the vessel sighted Cape Borda, and on Monday the Press boat was vociferously welcomed as she went alongside, and soon after the ship was brought to anchor. The following is a list of the immigrants :- [selectively quoted] Single Women.- Sarah Arnett, 21; Bridget Bird, 13; Eliza Bayliss, 25; Susan Back ham, 39; Mary Carroll, 22; Kate Cook, 20; Ellen Considine, 15; Eliza Considine, 18; Mary Campbell, 17; Eliza Carter, 31; Julia Charlton, 19; Sarah Davison, 18 ; Ann Dollen, 33 ; Catherine Duvernay, 24 ; Mary Day, 26 ; Honora Fitzgerald, 64 ; Ann Fitzmaurice, 38 ; Caroline Fuchs, 47 ; Louisa Fuchs, 15; Lettie Ford, W; Ann Gal vin, 21 ; Ann Gogerty, 18 ; Clara Green wood, 19; Hannah Groves, 58; Grace Groves, 15; Bridget Hayes, 17; E.
